Foreword . . .

ABOVE: Increased emphasis of group discussions and "blocs" allows diversified study areas.

Nineteen hundred and seventy draws ten remarkable years to a close. For many people these years were capped by man's eventful journey to the moon, but the grads of 1970 will recall, perhaps, more vividly their years at John R. Rogers.

Possessing newly developed ideals, goals, beliefs and much hope, one remembers how he entered a decade insane and babbling and emerged with knowledge, love and compassion.

John Rogers High School has shared part of that decade with thousands of students; some two thousand shared 1970.

This is the Treasure Chest of "John R." entering a decade of the future.

Blocks Teach College Techniques . . .

ABOVE: Lynn Hurd's mind wanders to various non-academic interests.

BELOW: Students anxiously (?) await roll call.

Block programs for academically-talented seniors expanded during the 1969-1970 school year. The English-social studies block class for college-bound seniors, started in September 1968 by Mr. Clay Swisher and Mr. David Armstrong, was joined by a second section this year taught by Mrs. Frances Scott and Mr. Armstrong.

Instructors in the block programs attempt to provide learning experiences designed to ease the change from the high school situation to the campus setting. A common thread runs throughout the learning experiences in an attempt to develop logical thought processes.

Seniors in the block courses are encouraged to assume responsibility for their own learning. Most assignments tend to be of the long-term variety, and students are not pressured to do their work during the regular class time. During a typical two-hour class period, one might find some students at the John Rogers Library, others at one of the area universities, and still others in the rooms of the course instructors.

Mrs. Scott, Mr. Swisher, and Mr. Armstrong, assessing the block programs in June 1970, concluded that the year had been a good one, particularly from the stand point of developing close working relationships between students and teachers. The three agreed that really substantive comment on the merits of the program would have to wait comment from the various campuses to which the 1970 block students would be reporting in September.

Math Complements 'Total Education'

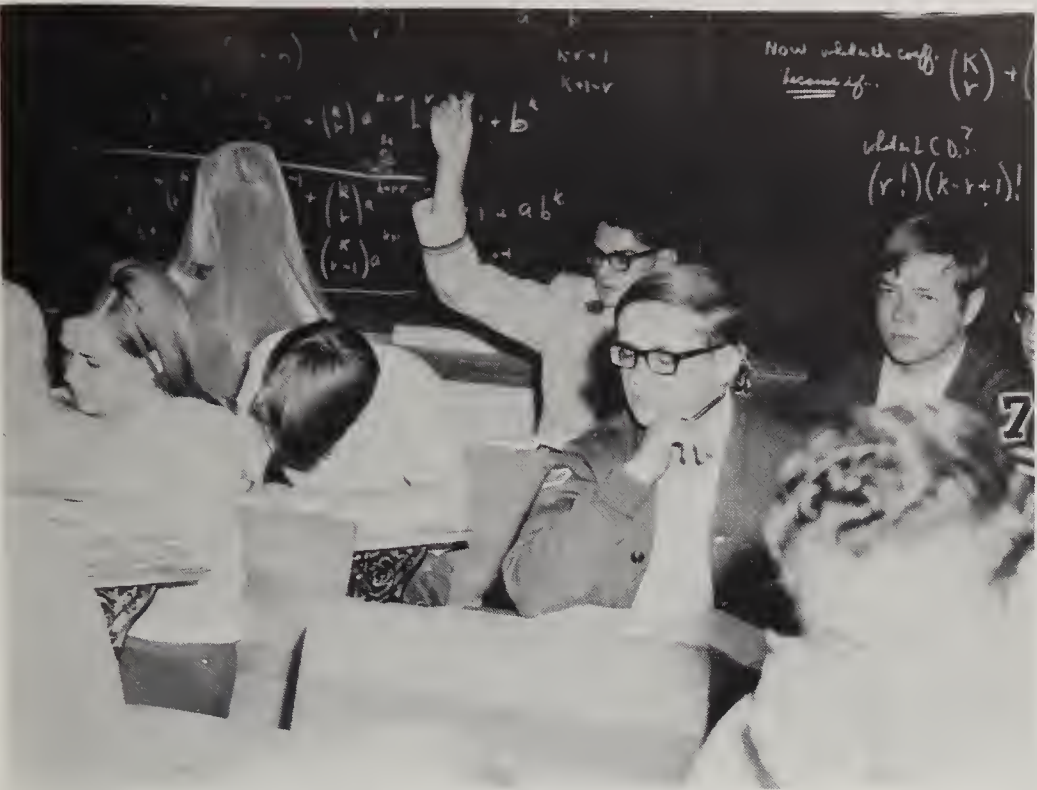

Main objective of mathematics at John Rogers is to give the student substantive knowledge of mathematics that is compatible with individual abilities and comprehension. A fast moving and scientific orientated world necessitates a mathematical awareness.

For the high school graduate general mathematics, modern algebra, and modern geometry provide the student with sufficient knowledge in the vocations and the liberal arts. Intermediate and advanced mathematics courses are available to the college prep student. For one with a professional career in mind, such math courses are beneficial for interest in education, engineering, medicine, science, communication, and economics.

Consideration of one's personal abilities, future goals, and desires should be of primary importance to the math student.

ABOVE: "Teacher, I don't understand," cries Monte Pearson.

Scientific Awareness Furthers Progress . . .

Science at Rogers, which includes physics, chemistry, biology, and physical science, attempts to expose the student to the scientific world. By participation in field trips, experiments, dissections, video tapes and research, students can explore the world, outer-space, and their immediate environments.

The Biology teacher emphasizes fundamental biological concepts.

The chemistry department provides a dual purpose program in order to accommodate the varying needs of the students in the field. Those needs range from complicated technology to chemistry for personal interest. It is hoped that this broad spectrum will meet the needs of all the students at Rogers who have an interest in chemistry.

The science student this year, more than ever before, was exposed to the problems that technology has created.

History Relates Past to Present . . .

Of all the high schools in Spokane, Rogers probably has the broadest and most comprehensive base in the social studies field. Meeting the needs and aspirations of students has provided the tone and direction of the social studies program at John R. Rogers High School.

In order to sensitize the student and give him direction in his future role as a responsible citizen, the social studies curriculum has been updated. Considerable effort on the part of the teachers furthered the goal of intelligence, reason, and understanding in helping the student to cope with the problems of a confusing contemporary world. We are in the process of reevaluating our goals in order to equip students with ways of thinking, feeling, and acting, which will enable them to behave more effectively and with greater understanding and satisfaction.

Languages Reflect Foreign Cultures . . .

Parlez-vous français? Mais oui.

Hablas español? Ya lo creo!

From the first day in Rogers' language classes, students begin hearing the language they have selected and making their own responses in the language. Hearing and speaking are soon followed by reading and writing, so that all the basic language skills are developed. The language laboratory aids in giving each student opportunity for the constant repetitive practice which is necessary for mastery.

This year the four second-year Spanish classes were organized for SLAPS (Spanish-Learning-Activity-Packet-Series), to permit every student to start where needed, and progress as rapidly as ambition and ability permitted. Instruction here was on the individual or very small group basis.

In addition to the ten sections of Spanish and six of French, there is a lively first-year Latin class and a small group of students studying German during the after-school hours.

Art Develops Creativity . . .

The Fine Arts department at Rogers offers each student the opportunity to be an artist whether he is working with pencil, paint, or pottery. The variety of art media is unlimited. Basic art provides a working background for the more specialized areas of painting, drawing, lettering, sculpture, commercial art, and crafts. The goal of all the art classes is one of appreciation and understanding by participation and experimentation.

The flexibility within the building and the wealth of available resource materials can provide each individual student with the means to do his own thing in art.

Industrial Arts Department Expands . . .

Industrial Arts at Rogers offers more courses than any of the other high schools in Spokane. The students who take these classes have a chance to explore, such areas as: Woodworking, metalworking, electronics, drafting, and automechanics. Also, this year, a course in graphic arts has been added that is proving popular with senior students.

The school was fortunate during the summer and fall of 1969 to purchase two different print shops that were going out of business. Rogers now has five presses and a sizeable stock of type. The students do various jobs for the school.

Students at Rogers have a great opportunity to decide what life work they are interested in and what will most be satisfying to them in the future.

Music Enlightens With Harmony . . .

ABOVE: Why so glum? The concert is only tonight.

Rogers' Music Department provided spirit and harmony during the 1969-70 academic year. Through listening and reciting, students gained additional cultural awareness.

To bring variety to the department, two new classes joined the music program. Music Theory, alternating with Stage Band, gave students an understanding of the methods by which music is created. Beginning Guitar, introduced the second semester, helped students utilize musical talents on a popular instrument. Stage Band brought music with a beat to the halls of Rogers.

Mr. Larry Hagen added a new look by taking over the choral section of the department. The various choral groups and the Symphonic Band entertained audiences during many appearances with melodic interpretations of various arrangements.

The Rogers Marching Band flashed the school's colors at many athletic events as members of the organization worked diligently to perfect marching techniques with bursts of enthusiasm, displaying Rogers spirit to the team's competitors.

Domestic Skills Gained Through Experience . . .

Home economics classes are now offered on a one semester basis, except for freshman classes which are still two semester courses. Besides the basic sewing and cooking classes there are a variety of other electives. Consumer Economics teaches sensible money management for the present and future, and is now co-educational. Social Relations, concerning family roles, has also been changed to co-educational.

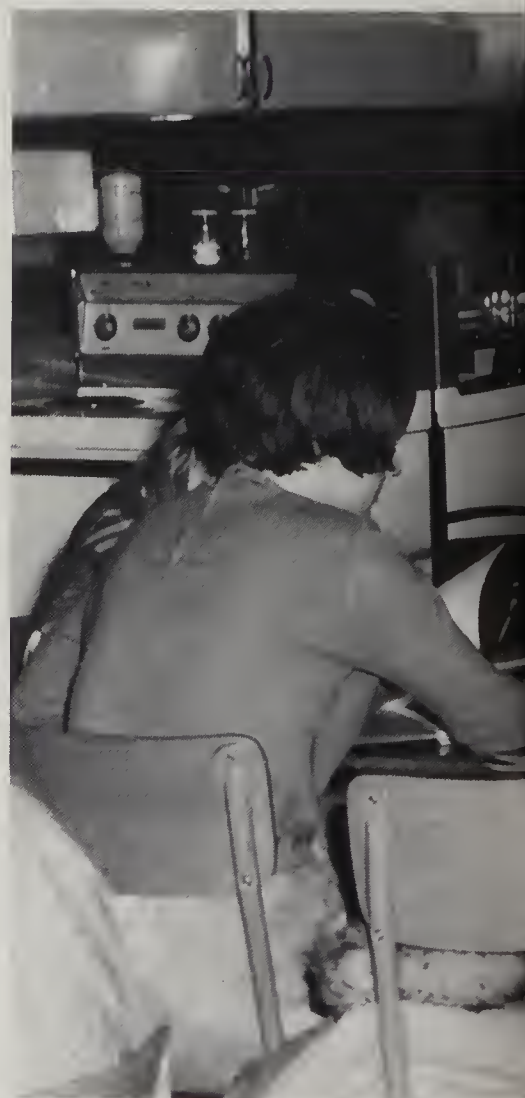

A one semester course of Child Development is now being offered above the freshman level instead of being combined with other home economics courses. The Boys Foods class continued this year, and was reported as very successful.

PE Breaks Daily Routine . . .

The Physical Education department at Rogers provides students with adequate training to lead a normal healthy life. PE time is used to educate boys and girls about such things as: Cigarettes, drugs, and other social problems. The boys participate in various sports; some of which include: Volleyball, use of the universal gym, dodgeball, crab soccer, and boxing.

Girls' PE is required during the freshman, sophomore, and junior years. Team sports include: Soccer, volleyball, basketball, and softball. Other activities vary from track, archery, bowling, shuffleboard, and modern dance, to such life time sports as golf and tennis.

A new activity during the first semester was performing rhythmic using balls and hula hoops.

Secretarial Science is the second year of office training, carried on in a three-hour block of time. The work is presented in an integrated program covering nineteen areas.

The block or integrated approach to the teaching of vocational business subjects does not devote a certain amount of time to the building of any one skill—rather, each problem that is presented to the students includes several skills blended together.

In addition to the regularly assigned classroom problems, the students in the class act as a secretarial pool and are on "call" to take dictation, make out reports, make business calls, do duplicating, and carry on other business procedures for members of the faculty and administration.

Many of the graduates are able to obtain jobs directly after graduation. Others who go to business college or college find that they can enter advanced classes at these colleges. In addition, they are able to do secretarial work on campus to help them earn while going to school.

Part of the work of the class involves personality training—getting along with others and developing qualities of responsibility, dependability, and integrity that are so vital in holding a job.

Chec And Deca Add Variety . . .

ABOVE: "Are you sure it's dead?" quips Mrs. Moe.

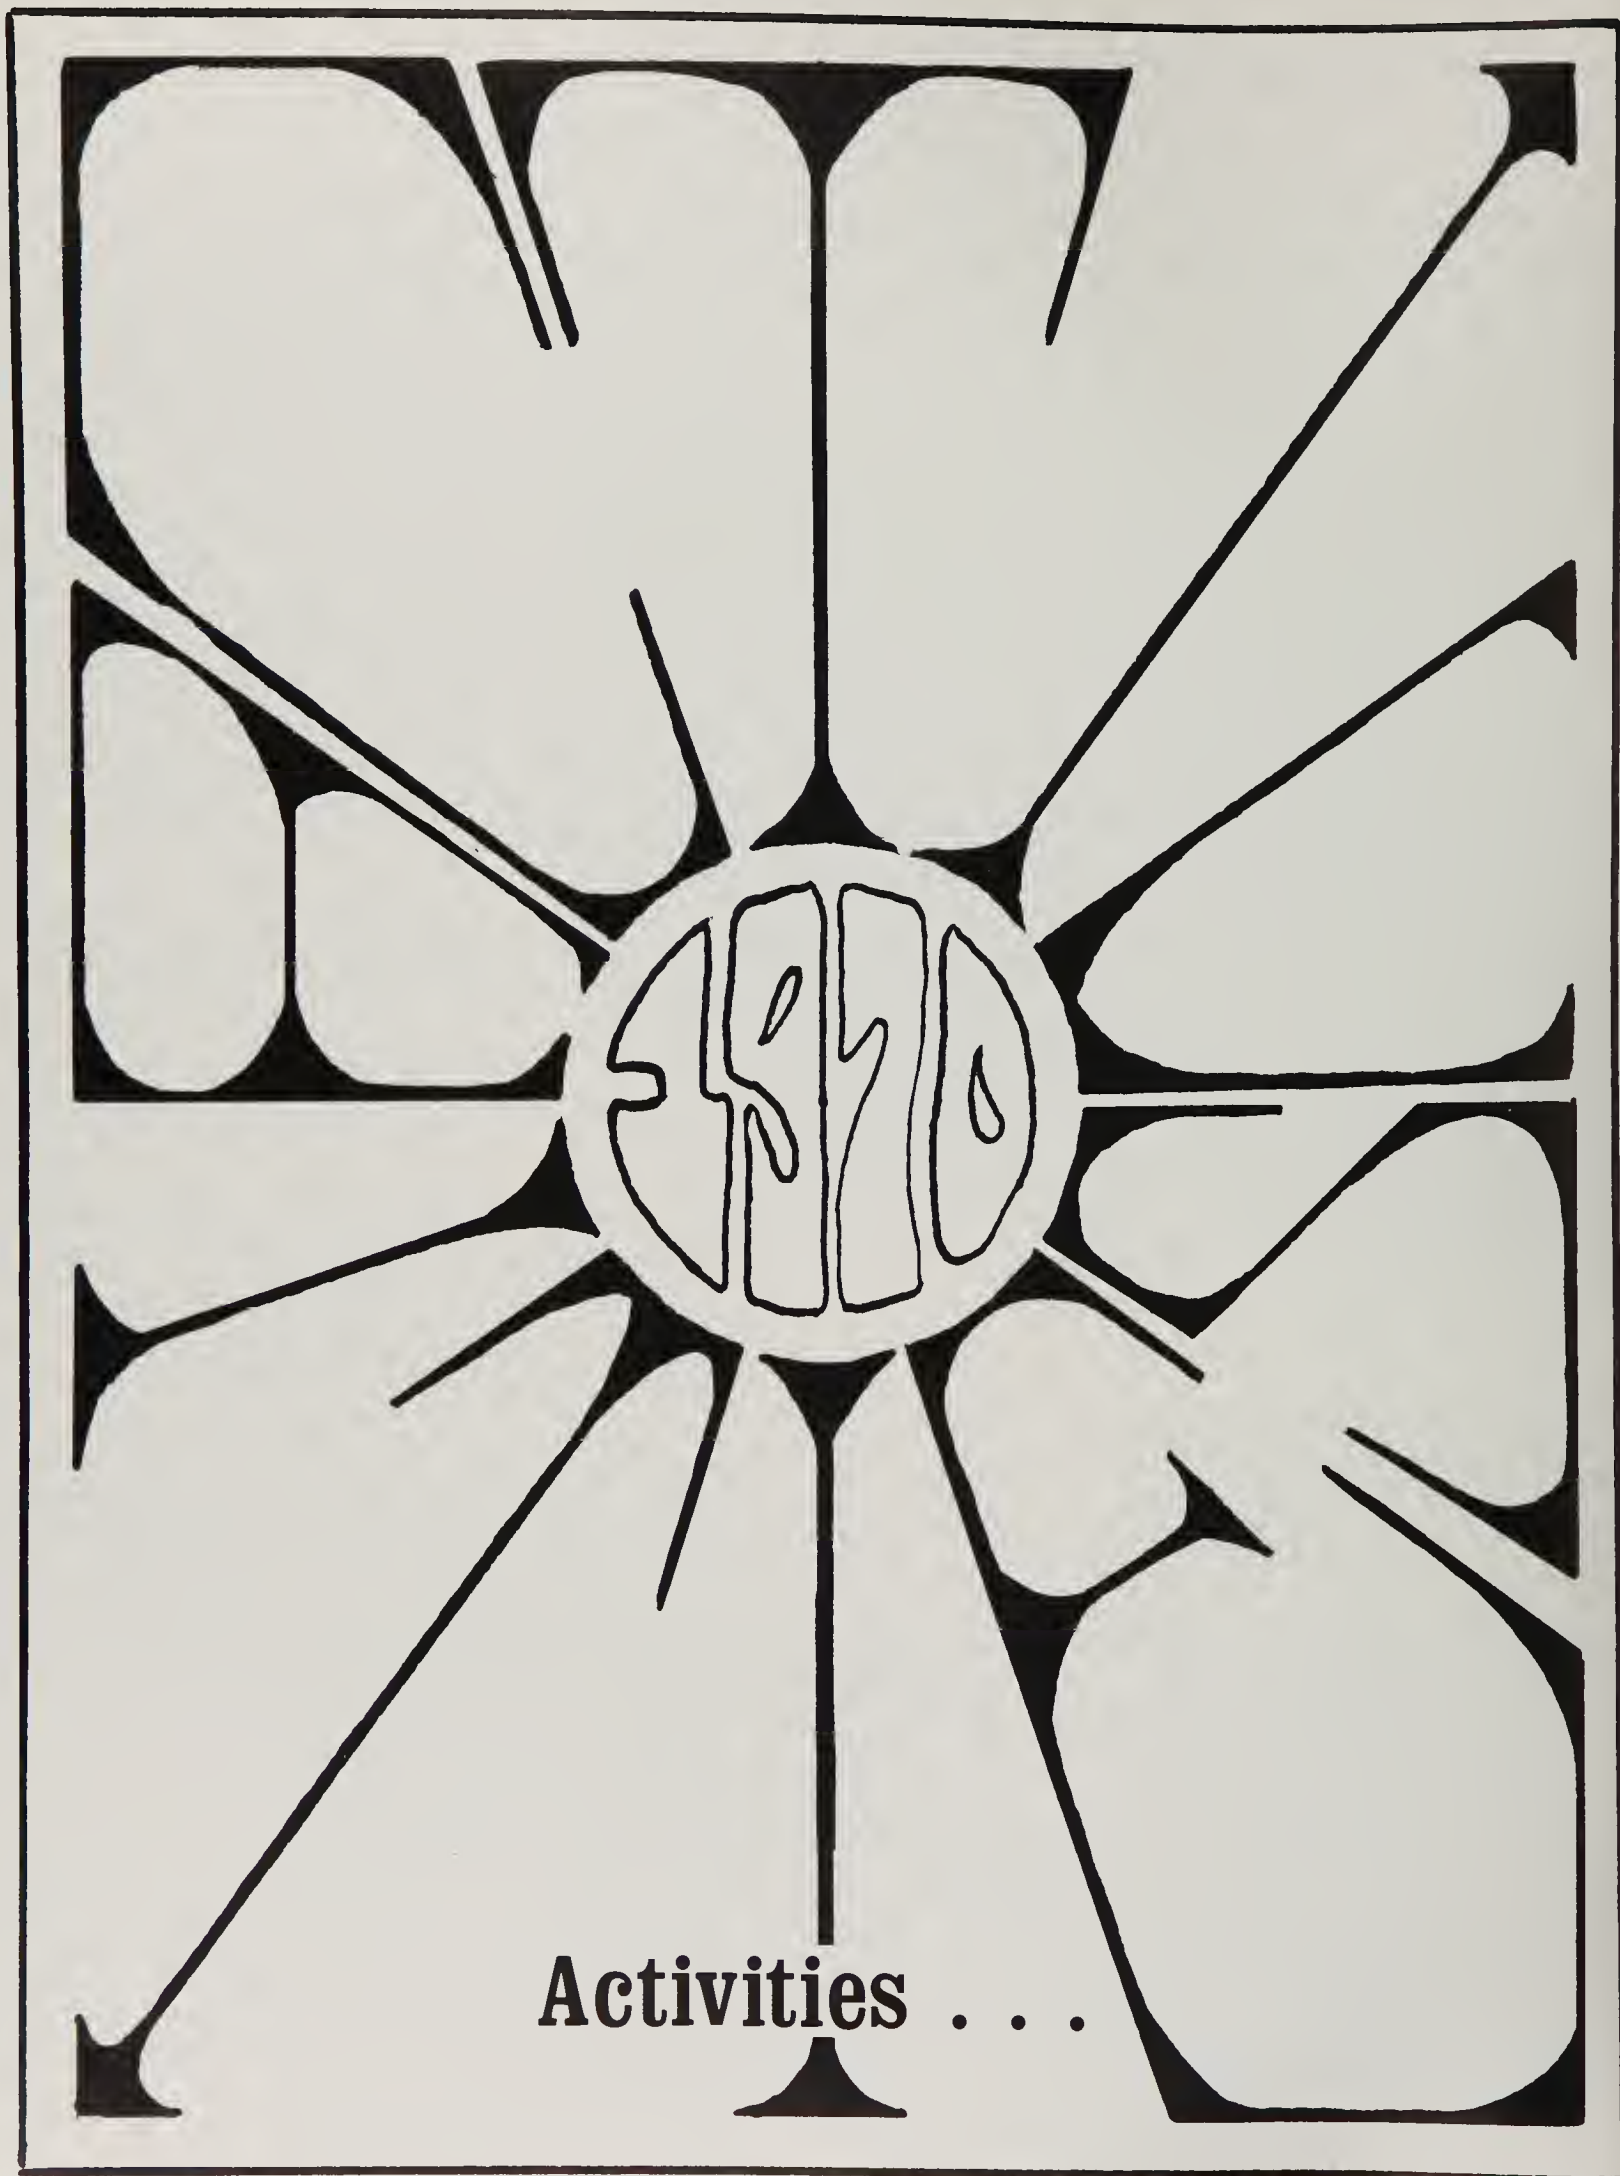

CHEC (Community Help Education Class) is a learn and work training class for seniors. Students use homemaking skills and apply them to wage earning situations. Each student spends one period in class and an equivalent amount of time at several training stations.

The class is a one year course, and each student has the opportunity to get experience in the several areas of health care, laundry work, institutional housekeeping, child day care centers, and food services during this time. She receives two credits per semester for the course.

DECA is vocational education for merchandising, marketing and management. It has three primary objectives: to offer the type of balanced, comprehensive instructional programs in all areas of distribution and marketing that will lead to employment and/or advancement in a distributive occupation; to aid in improving techniques of distribution; and to develop an understanding of the social and economic responsibilities of those engaged in distribution in a free, competitive society.

Big 'R' Week Promotes Spirit . . .

Once every three years, John Rogers celebrates Big "R" Week, a week long activity that promotes spirit and fun.

On Peanuts' Day, students searched for purple and gold peanuts hidden throughout the school.

Later in the week, Mr. Irresistible was chosen by his ability to charm girls into a conversation, who in turn had to give up their "Irresistible" tags.

A car bash Thursday climaxed Big "R" Week and set the mood for the first football game of the year on Friday.

Homecoming spirit began with the announcement of Royalty on Friday, October 24, 1969. Activities of Homecoming included the coronation of Queen Kathy and the introduction of the Court at a convocation. Later in the day, Rogers hosted North Central at a football game, where the Royalty was again introduced.

Highlighting the week was the Homecoming Dance. Honoring the Royalty, Triple Trio sang special numbers, and Queen Kathy and the princesses received gifts to add to their memories.

Fall Play Features Suspense . . .

In November, the curtains on Rogers' stage opened to the all-school play, "The Best Laid Plans."

It was the story of a senile old woman who wrote mystery novels, and how she became involved in a conspiracy of her own.

Directed by Dale F. Brannon, drama instructor, and Dennis Ashley, student at Spokane Community College, it was a highly successful production.

Fall GL Displays Ingenuity . . .

Girls' League officers had various duties devoted to school activities. In appreciation for the exceptional job of Girls' League Representatives, the officers organized a breakfast in their honor.

Girls and dads had their night out at the Dad-Daughter Dessert on November 23. Entertainment for the dessert was provided by vocal and dance groups, and selected, talented individuals.

During the Christmas season, Girls' League and Boys' Fed sponsored a Canned Food Drive in an effort to bring happiness to a few families in the community.

Besides school activities, officers attended the meetings of all other Girls' Leagues in the city. The officers had breakfast and parties with other schools' officers to exchange ideas and build friendships.

ASB Emphasizes Improvement . . .

Building a new marquee was the main project of the Rogers Fall ASB officers. Many other improvements were accomplished too; among them were painting the tool shed in the school's colors, attaining a Pirate Head for the new board, and displaying painted tires on the fence.

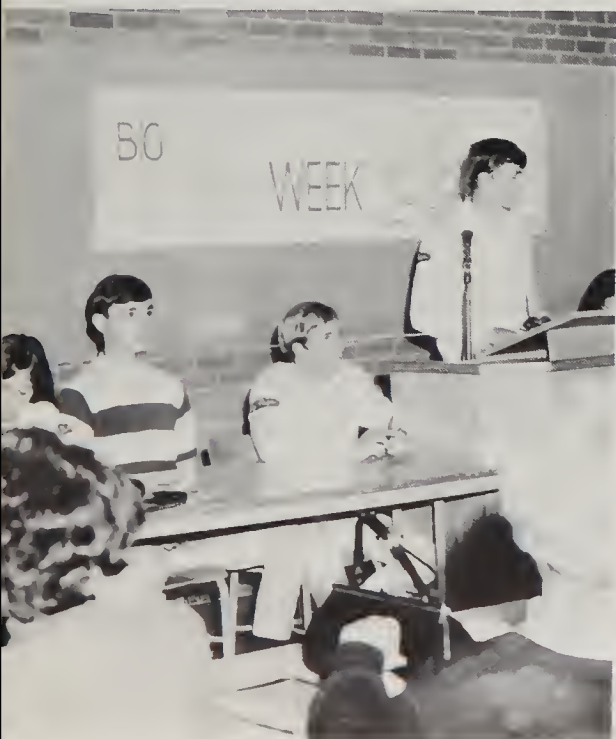

One of the goals set by the Fall officers was to draw teachers and students into a closer relationship. This was achieved by having conferences between officers and teachers discussing mutual problems.

Revision of the constitution was a challenging job, which made the officers and Student Body appreciate democracy in the school society.

Activities of the Boys' Federation were plentiful this fall. One of the biggest events was the annual Mother-Son Banquet.

Some of the cons provided entertainment, such as the boxers from Morning Star Boys' Ranch, and a judo exhibition.

Girls' League and Boys' Federation combined ideas and energy for the P.J. Gobbler, a Thanksgiving pajama dance, which turned out to be a huge success.

Student Help Aids Administration . . .

Throughout the school day, student helpers can be found carrying out assigned tasks in the office, bookroom and the library.

Office workers type and distribute absentee and truancy lists. The bookroom uses two or three helpers each period during the school day. Their duties include stapling, duplicating, mending books, selling supplies and issuing lockers. Students can also work there during the summer to earn Girls' League or Boys' Fed. points.

Library helpers provide a necessary addition to the library staff. Besides checking magazines and books in and out, they shelve and mend them.

Working for the administration helps prepare students for the future. They gain experience meeting the public and learn how to work efficiently and accurately under pressure.

The staff was called upon at the last minute many times to make prints to meet dead lines.

Many thanks goes to them for their devotedness.

Spokane's Junior Miss Pageant is a search for a senior girl to represent the Lilac City. Held at the Davenport Hotel on November 15, 1969, the pageant contestants were judged on poise, appearance, youth fitness, creative and performing arts, and scholastic achievement.

As Spokane's Junior Miss 1970, Ginger Evens entered the State Junior Miss Pageant held at Pullman, Washington, January 28, 1970. The judges' decisions were based the same as the Spokane Pageant, but on a higher grading scale.

Other contests sponsored by the Breck and Kodak companies were entered by each of the contestants: Ginger won the Breck contest which was judged on hair styling ability, creativity, and originality. In August, the National Breck contest will be held in Mobile, Alabama, consisting of the fifty state winners.

During Ginger's yearlong reign as Spokane's Junior Miss, she will attend various meetings and conventions, participate in social affairs, and represent the Junior Chamber of Commerce during the Spokane Lilac Festival, and other cities' festivals.

Duane Berger, Lorrie Sawtells, and Phyllis Cline provided the editorial direction for the 1969-70 Rogers Record Staff, a staff which displayed the ability to assume total responsibility for the publication of the paper.

Innovations during the year included alternation of newspaper policy, moving news coverage out of the confines of the school and into the world community, and working with the paper from gathering of the news to getting the "copy" camera ready!

Decorated as a barn, the cafeteria gave a "Dogpatch" type atmosphere. During the dance, couples were joined in marriage by Rex Smith, Marryin' Sam.

The GL committee chairmen were given a party on February 11, celebrating Valentine's Day. Girls' League also helped on the Easter Seal Drive held March 14. On March 24, the homeroom representatives were given a breakfast in recognition of their services. On May 6, the Senior Mothers' Tea was presented for senior girls and their mothers.

The final activity for the year was the election of the Fall 1970 officers, who were installed in May at the annual Girls' League Installation Con.

Spring ASB officers got into the full swing of things by carrying out a Constitutional Convention. Started in the early part of March, the purpose was to completely revise Rogers' Constitution.

Action to acquire new equipment for the Radio-T.V. classes was begun by the officers, but left up to the school administration.

Improving the school also absorbed quite a bit of the officers' time. Discussions ranged from new telephones for more convenient use, to the teachers parking lot which was in need of paving. Officers also waged a full-fledged clean-up program around the school. Litter was collected and parking lots taken care of by the entire student body. All in all, the officers had a very full Spring term.

BF Officers Develop Leadership . . .

The major project taken on by the Boys' Federation in the Spring was Careers Day, held once every two years. A Boys' Fed. committee recorded the sign-up sheets on to a master copy and assigned the students to the various speakers who spoke to the students about their respective professions.

Other activities for the Spring semester included: The car rally, the carnival, and Dads' Night.

State Conventions Educate Students . . .

Six outstanding Juniors were chosen to represent John Rogers this year at the 1970 Boys' and Girls' State Conventions.

Margaret Munikeyo was chosen Girls' State Representative, with Kathy Rubright as an alternate. Representing Rogers at Boys' State are Bill Bilnoski and Chuck Brandenburg, with Ethan Moseng and Roy Kurimura as alternates.

Girls' State will be held for one week during the summer in Ellenburg. Gonzaga University in Spokane will host Boys' State. These programs are designed to teach students how our government works by setting up one of their own then taking an active part in running it.

Besides providing students with knowledge of our government, it's an enjoyable time also. State gives them a chance to meet people from all areas of the state.

'Moments Like These' . . .

This year's Junior Prom was held due to the efforts of a few concerned juniors. Money-making projects were staged to raise needed money. There were car washes, bake sales, and pop bottle drives.

General Chairman for fund raising was Priscilla Shannon and chairmen under her were Suzie Miacolo, Marcia Olsen, and Kris Funston.

"Moments Like These" was the theme of the dance held in the Rogers' cafeteria. The semi-formal attire made this a special dance for the juniors.

"Days of Wine and Roses" was the theme chosen for the Senior Prom by the Class of 1970.

Money to finance the dance was raised by Seniors who sold beautifully decorated candles prior to the Christmas Season.

Held at the Spokane Community College Lodge on May 16, the City Zu provided live music.

Formal attire set the mood for the evening which provided a fitting ending to the Seniors busy high school careers.

Graduation Brings Fulfillment . . .

May 31, 1970, brought a day of fulfillment and sorrow to the class of 1970. Graduation was the end of formal education for some, while for others the twelve years became stepping stones toward further education. Old faces and friendships parted to make way for the new.

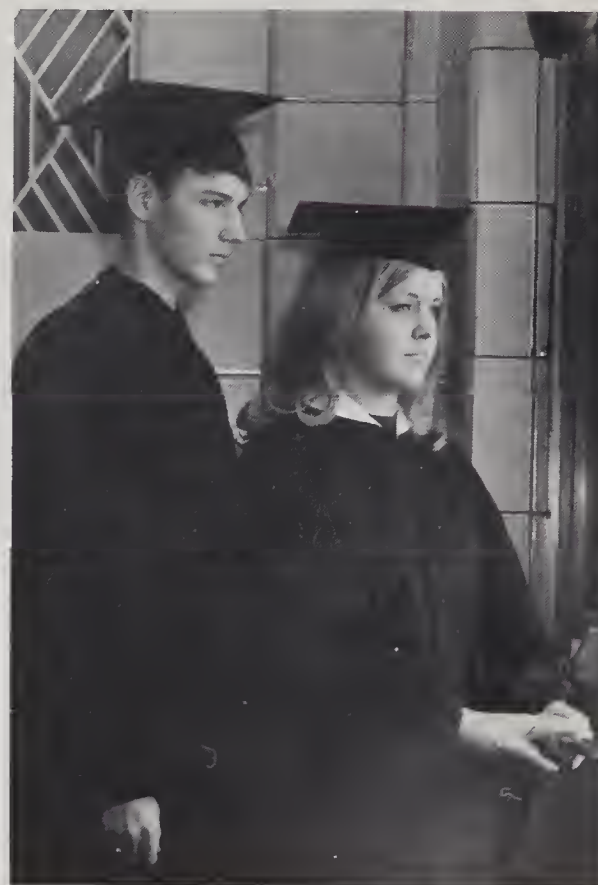

Over 500 Rogers graduates received diplomas at commencement exercises held in the Spokane Coliseum. Dreams and hopes for the future were soon to become reality as the seniors began to take on their new role in society.

Highlighting choir's social activities were a bowling party, followed by a bonfire, Christmas caroling with the band, and a Christmas party, where members hung stockings, with each member's name on them. The party was concluded with everyone enjoying punch and cookies.

In Girls' Ensemble, three girls were added to the group, making it twelve girls, instead of nine. The group's name was also changed from Triple Trio to Girls' Ensemble. Girls' Ensemble sang in a lot of different activities, such as: the Homecoming Dance, Mother-Son Banquet, Dad and Daughter Dessert, and the Rogers Revue.

New Director Leads Groups . . .

This year, Rogers gained a new choral director, Mr. Larry Hagen, who is a past Rogers graduate. Before coming to Rogers this year, Mr. Hagen taught one year at Shaw Junior High and five years at Ferris High School. Last year, he attended Indiana University on a government fellowship in multiple arts.

Second semester, a new mixed group was introduced. This replaced Boys' Chorus and was for anyone with or without training.

All of the choral groups participated in concerts this year, and the choir also participated in the Rogers Revue and graduation rites.

Each year players who are proficient on their instrument prepare taped auditions for membership in the All-State Band or Orchestra. This year four members of the Rogers band were accepted for membership in the state-wide group. They were Larry Anderson, and Ken Burger for band, and Debbie Gillman and Gary Goble for the orchestra.

Various members of the Rogers Symphonic Band were selected to represent Rogers in the annual Spokane Music Festival Honors Band in the Spring.

Student government plays a large role in Band activities. Officers for 1969-70 were: President, Gary Goble; vice-president, Tom Phillips; secretary, Debbie Gillman; business manager, Shelley Holten; uniform manager, Charlene Jones, and Drum Major, Ken Burger.

The year was highlighted by three traditional activities. The Senior Honors Concert presented each senior and featured senior soloists. An Awards Banquet, held annually at a restaurant of the members choice, honored seniors and awarded each member pins for their individual band service.

Ending the year, bandsmen enjoyed themselves with food and frolic at the annual Band Picnic.

Cheerleaders Support Teams . . .

Cheerleaders spent the week before each game practicing and deciding what special thing they could do for the team that week. Every Friday morning they got up early and woke the players by cheering and decorating their houses. Towards the end of the season the players' families depended on them for an alarm clock.

There were always many hours of practice during the week on their line-up, cheers, and routines, and time spent baking things for the team. It seemed like a lot of work, but the girls felt it was worth it because they knew it was appreciated.

One of the truly greatest experiences for the cheerleaders was cheerleading camp. There the girls learned to work together and got to know each other better, too.

Cheerleaders tried to create more spirit this past year by supporting the teams in every way. It was a hard job, yet one which was very worth while.

In the spring, Pirettes sold programs at the Coliseum and held various money-making projects to finance a weekend trip to the Bar-M-Dude Ranch in Oregon. The Pirettes topped off a busy year by marching in the Lilac Armed Forces Parade.

Pirates Capture Second Place . . .

The 1969-1970 season was a unique year for the Pirate football team. Almost each week the Pirates gained some honor and recognition for their school. Dave Wood, Dick Robertson, Wade Shaw, and Mike Pete were selected on the Inland Empire "Athlete of the week" list. The Pirate team was also selected "team of the week" with their masterful win over the number three state-rated Gonzaga Prep Bullpups.

At the first of the season Rogers was picked to finish fifth in the league standings because they had only five lettermen, but with hard work and the brilliant leadership of seven players Rogers ended up in second place in an always tough city league. They were tenth ranked in the state until the final game.

The season held many surprises as Rogers was only two points from a first place finish. The Pirate defense at times was brilliant with their goal line stands against Shadle Park. The offense was devastating with their high-gearred passing attack and outstanding backs like Bowerman, Shaw, Robertson, Pete, Duncan and Wood. The line opened huge holes led by Lundstrom, Cottrell, Thew and Shane. Many passes were caught by Engdahl, Nelson, and Mike Shaw.

Rogers was picked to finish fifth in the city, but we surprised a few people by tying for second. The team needed confidence to win, which didn't come until a fine win over Shadle, which gave us three wins and two losses. After a morale-building victory over Lewis and Clark, the highlight of the season came in a 12-7 win over previously unbeaten, untied, Gonzaga Prep.

We felt that we had a very successful season.

'69 Building Year for Bucs . . .

BELOW: Rogers' runners vie for position.

The end of the decade saw Rogers' Crosscountry fortunes take a dip as the varsity compiled a mediocre 1-4 league season record, though, in typical fashion, finishing strongly at All-City.

The absence of key personnel more than likely made impossible a probable third place league finish.

The B-squad completed their season with a more impressive record, breaking even in ten meets.

An inconsistent offense prevented the Pirates from "putting it all together" and resulted in narrow losses to Gonzaga, Ferris, and North Central.

Dave Wood and Tim Poffenroth both gained city wide recognition with Wood leading the Pirates in scoring and Poffenroth averaging in double figures, also.

Wood Leads Area Scoring . . .

Rogers placed only one man on the all-city basketball team this year, that one being junior Dave Wood. Wood scored 399 points for a 18.2 average per game to take the overall scoring title.

Senior Tim Poffenroth was also a contender for all-city honors being fifth in league scoring, with 132 points, and number one in free throw percentages.

BELOW: Tim Poffenroth goes in for two more of his 132 points.

Teams Build for Future Success . . .

The B-Squad team, coached by Robert Poffenroth, and the Frosh team, coached by Perry Morton, seem to be having the same difficulty as the varsity team this year with the absence of height in their starting line-ups.

Girls Learn Gymnastic Skills . . .

From October to March, a seldom seen up-and-coming sport is practiced and perfected in the girls' gym at Rogers. This sport is gymnastics, and the girls who practice it know what hard work is all about as gymnastics demand many skills—strength, coordination, grace, and brains—to learn compulsory routines and to create the optional routines.

The girls strive for ease of movement on the balance beam, vault box, uneven bars, trampoline, and in free exercise and tumbling. Gymnastics is also a fun sport when the group works together as a team and plays together as friends.

Although competition with the three other Spokane high schools yielded no wins for Rogers, each girl gained something for herself at each meet. Culminating the season, Rogers sent four girls to the State Gymnastics Meet held at the Lewis and Clark fieldhouse here in Spokane.

It was a good year—all things considered!

Pirates Fail to Reach Goal . . .

The 1969-70 Pirate Wrestling team failed to accomplish a major objective. That being a fourth straight City League championship.

The main goal of any team is winning, but winning is not the only standard of accomplishment.

The 1969-70 Pirate Grapplers were a fine example of the old Rogers spirit of never accepting defeat and never gloating over a victory. Consequently a team that was not expected to be a contender wrestled against Joel E. Ferris in a critical match for the League Championship. Losing narrowly to Ferris and to three other League teams, the Bucs saw the Championship fade away. But the Pirates were there all the way, and they can find consolation knowing they tried and knowing they did their best.

BELOW: What do you have there, Maury?

Japanese Come to Spokane . . .

The state of Washington was privileged to host the Japanese National Wrestling Champions during their tour of American schools.

While in Spokane, the Japanese visited area high schools and competed in an exhibition match. They overcame Spokane's top grapplers, and while in Washington suffered one, lone defeat.

B-Squaders Prepare for Future Varsity Competition . . .

The Rogers B-Squad team had a down year this year losing more matches than they won. The team consisted of different members throughout the year, which resulted in many close losses.

This team serves a vital purpose, giving future varsity wrestlers experience.

Baseball Team to be Contender . . .

With the construction of the new baseball field, Forsyth Park, the Rogers Baseball team hopes to achieve the feat of bringing the championship back to Rogers for a second straight year.

The team has many returning lettermen, including all but one of the starting infield from last year. The Pirates were hardest hit in the pitching department, with the loss of some very fine pitchers. Members of the team feel that through hard work and spirit it will be another winning season.

The B-Squad and the Frosh teams, the stepping stone to the varsity, are confident that they will have winning records this year. This assurance, however, rests on one thing—pitching.

Both Coach Gary Mills and Coach Larry Coleman are sure that they can pull the strings if the pitching comes through.

Tennis Outlook Dim . . .

It seems as though the tennis team is in for another grim season. According to Coach Paul Cooley, "The guys are not willing to work and the competition is going to be very rough. We might win one or two, but I don't think we will come close to last year's record of three wins and fourteen losses."

The girls are more optimistic and hope to win most of their matches with the return of several key performers.

The highlight of the golf season was the tournament in Yakima. Team members competed in an elimination tournament to determine the four golfers competing in the Yakima Tournament.

Other events of the season were the tournament in Kennewick and the All-City tournaments held in the fall and spring in Spokane.

for Second Title . . .

BELOW: Marc Mowbray clears the bar with ease to win the high jump.

Coach Jack Fanning had high hopes of following up last year's championship with another this year, but there were some problems. These problems will be alleviated if someone can be found to win the sprints and the long distance races. In the other areas the outlook was fairly good.

Faculty . . .

Administration

Paul C. MacGown
Principal

Rogers has been blessed with one of the best principals to be found. Mr. Paul C. MacGown has been the principal of our school for eight years, and he's doing a very good job.

No matter what his stand on a subject is, he's willing to listen to the other side of it. Everyone will agree that in order to have a student body that can work together, a person who is close to the kids is needed to counsel and lead. Mr. MacGown has given Rogers this and much more.

Tracy Walters
Dean of Boys

Pat McKiernan, Rogers' new Dean of Girls, has a job that is very large as well as important. Besides making schedules for new enrollments and changing errors, she also serves as a counselor.

Tracy Walters is also new this year. He's serving as Dean of Boys, but has already had experience with Rogers students, as he was at Rogers before, but left for three years. He says he's "glad to be back."

A THOUSAND CONGRATULATIONS

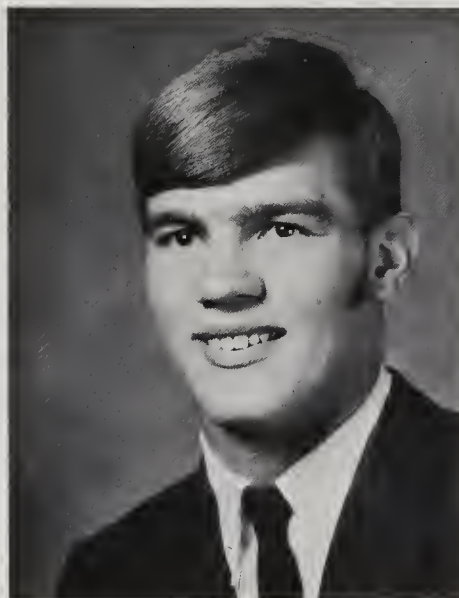

Count them if you like.

They come from your thousand friends — the people who make up the Washington Water Power family.

A year, ten years, maybe thirty years ago, each of us passed the milestone you have reached.
For us it preceded our entry into the world of private business and public service.

Our careers have, for the most part, been constructive and satisfying.

We sincerely wish as much for the graduates of 1970.

The year, as the decade, held much for many. Moments will survive; memories will flourish.

Growth and development, the Treasure Chest theme, made its impression on all those that produced this yearbook.

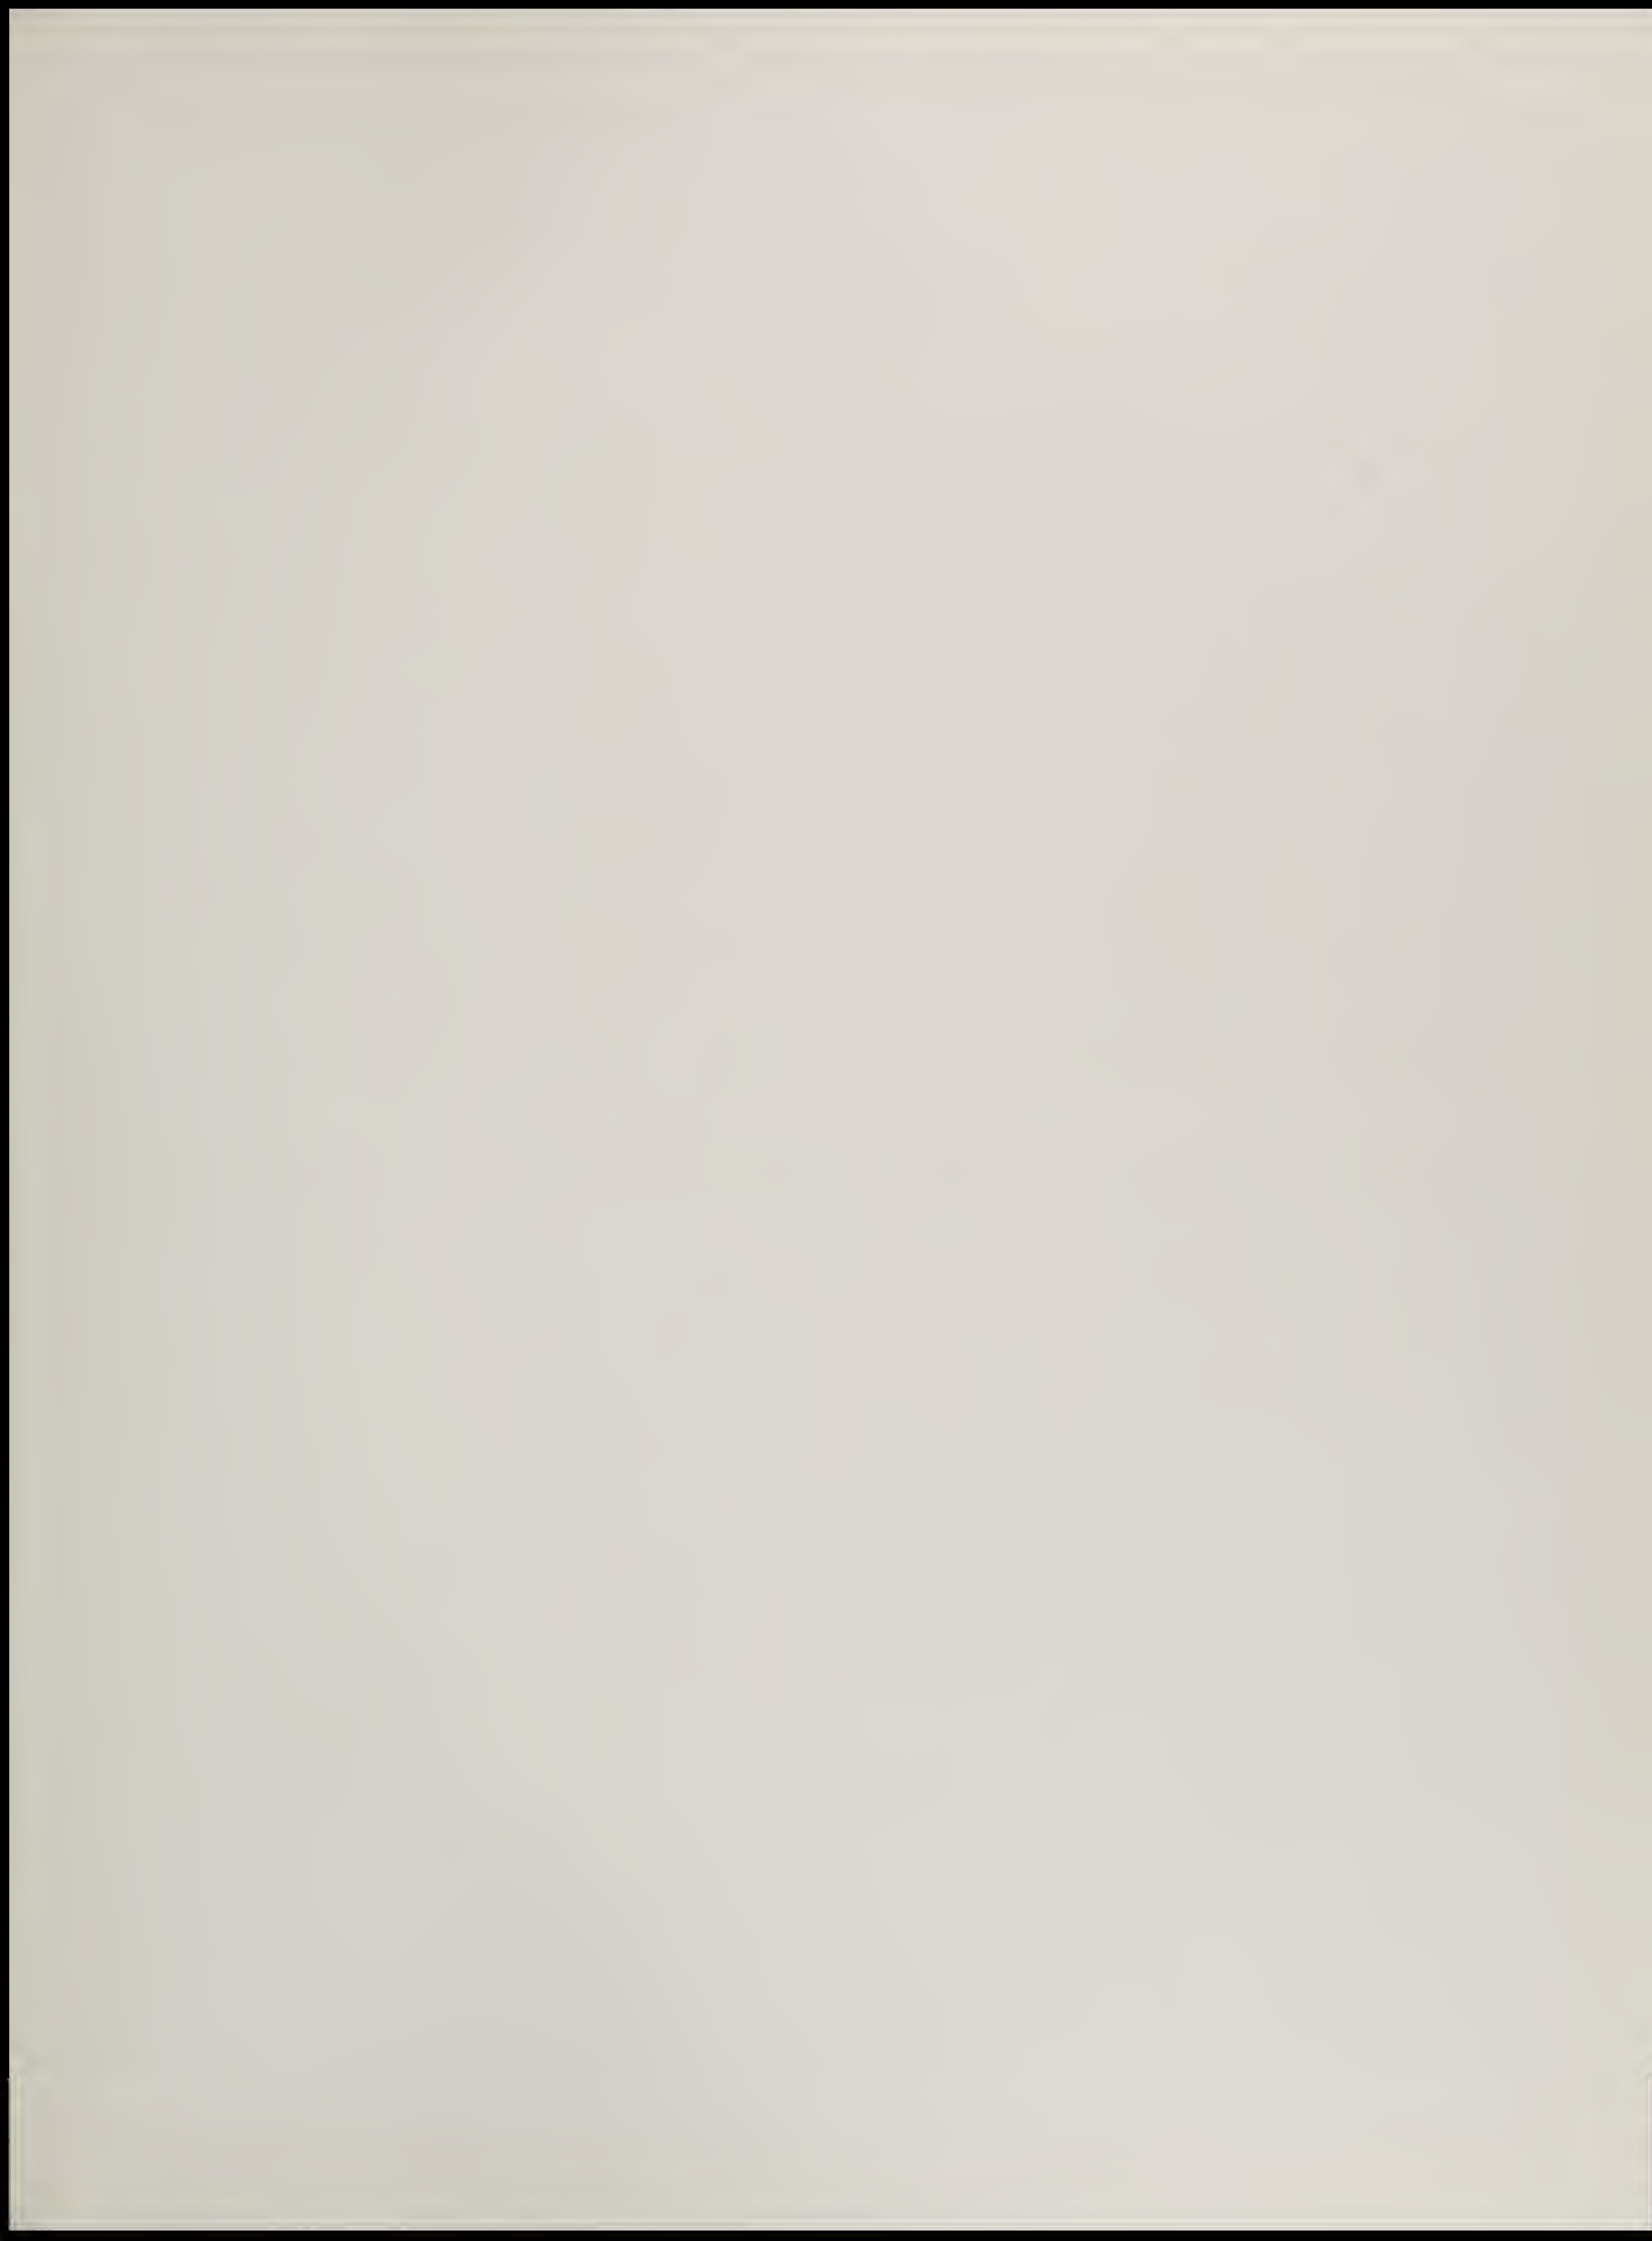

Fifth period routine offset by special Saturday sessions, the struggle to meet deadlines, the anxious waiting for the final product of ten months' work—ending in these bound pages of pictures and stories.

We furnished the pictures, the stories, the book—you add moments, memories and emotion.
